SEBASTOPOL IS THORN IN RUSSIA'S SIDE

Outbreak Proves to Have Been a Seriously Planned Revolutionary Movement Under the Influence of Socialist Leaders

ST. PETERSBURG Nov. 25—The [illegible] at Sebastopol was [illegible] as was the case [illegible] constant, but a seriously planned revolutionary demonstration, is made clear by the tone of the official statement issued by the admiralty tonight, declaring that sailors and several units of troops were [illegible] under the direct supervision of the socialist propaganda. It states as follows:

"The leaders of the [illegible] to [illegible] Rear Admiral Chouknin reports that the sailors under the socialistic propaganda have organized at Sebastopol a series of demonstrations. Vice Admiral Pisarewski was seriously wounded while trying to prevent a meeting being held. The situation is serious, though according to a report received early this morning no attempts have been made to pillage."

A dispatch from Sebastopol says the condition of Rear Admiral Pisarewski, who was wounded by mutineers, is critical. It is not known whether the men attacked the other officers.

The outbreak at Sebastopol complicates the problem of the government dealing with the Agrarian situation. Those disorders are growing and governors of five provinces have sent representations to the government that the troops available are insufficient to restore order and urgently appeal for reinforcements. Therefore it is not easy to organize a force to be dispatched to the relief of Sebastopol. The Cossacks are now being mobilized for service.

He is accompanied by one of his granddaughters and his son-in-law, and is on his way to Southern California to take in the sights. "I am proud of the Mormon church," said Mr. Farr, "but I believe the church should be kept out of politics. Senator Smoot has the right to vote as any American citizen, but he should not mix religion

MRS. HARRISON IS KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

For the Second Time a Member of the Crocker Family Is in Automobile Wreck—Car Overturns When Steering Apparatus Gets Out of Order

NEW YORK Nov. 25—Mrs. Frances Burton Harrison, wife of the candidate for lieutenant governor of New York at the last election, was killed in an automobile accident at Long Island City as Mrs. J. In explanation of the cause of the accident it was said tonight that the chauffeur threw off the clutch and allowed the automobile to run under its own momentum, which carried it too fast. In some manner a thumbscrew worked loose on the steering gear handle. As soon as the steering gear was thus released the front wheels swerved around, then the car overturned.

PUMP'S HANDLE WILL NOT BE WORKED NOW

Superintendant of Streets Douglass at Head of Force of Men Dispersas Crowd Which Objects to Removal of Landmark

THERE was excitement on Virginia street, near Commercial row, early yesterday morning when Superintendent of Streets Douglas, armed with a pick, shovel and monkey wrench, and backed up by a motley looking crowd of assistants, charged on a crowd defending the old town pump and despite resistance of a determined body of citizens, the old landmark was knocked down and carried away, wiping away for all time one of Reno's oldest landmarks, a convenience which in all probability more than all others has contributed more to the comfort of Nevadans than any other object in the state.

Several days ago Dr. Robinson of the board of health filed a report stating that the water from the well is full of germs unhealthy and a menace to life, recommending that it be declared a nuisance and abolished. His report was approved and ordered carried into effect.

Since then the other physicians have stated that the water is pure and not a menace to health.

As a result a party of taxpayers, headed by Judge G. W. Shutter-Cotton, yesterday morning began circulating a petition praying that the council rescind its order. When Mr. Douglas appeared about sixty citizens had signed the roll, but it was too late and the mandate of the law was to be carried out, even if force was necessary. A large crowd of determined citizens had gathered and many low mutterings, some suggesting violence, were heard, but finally right prevailed and the old pump went the way of all things which have outlived their usefulness.

TURKEY AFRAID TO FACE COMBINED POWERS

Her Available Navy Consists of a Fleet of Worthless Hulks and Her Army in Part Is Withdrawn to a Remote Section of Mytilene

PARIS, Nov. 25—Information reaching official quarters leads to a confidence that Turkey's resistance to the powers will not go to the extent of military measures of defense. An official who passed Dardanelles during the last few days, states that Turkey's available warships at Golden Horn are worthless hulks.

The island of Mytilene has a garrison of several hundred troops, but the French officials say that these were withdrawn to a remote part of the island when the French landing occurred in 1901 owing to the Sultan's desire to avoid the possibility of an armed conflict.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 25—Senator J. R. Burton of Kansas was tonight found guilty on all six counts in the indictment upon which he has been on trial for the past week in the United States Circuit Court, charging him with having agreed to accept and having accepted compensation from the Rialto Grain and Securities Company of St. Louis to appear for that company in the capacity of attorney before the postoffice department.

The verdict was returned after the jury had been out two hours and twenty minutes.

UNIVERSITY NEEDS MORE WORK HORSES

CASSIUS C. SMITH SUGGESTS GOOD REMEDY

Harsh Words of Critics Analyzed by Nevada's Representative to Pacific Coast Athletic Association and Old-time Football of Sagebrush College

(By Cassius M. Smith, Nevada representative Pacific Athletic Association.)

The Nevada State University stands pre-eminently at the head of the state's educational system. It's existence was made possible by the pioneers of Nevada, who in the drawing up of the constitution of the state, provided ways and means for the promotion of higher education. They provided ways and means for the establishment of a state university, embracing many departments of learning all leading to the conferring of degrees upon those who successfully complete the required work.

The early history makers point with pride at the present result of their labors. They point with pride to the records made by the students who have been graduated. They have at heart all that tends to upbuild and advance the leading department of education within the state. Their recent generous appropriations is ample evidence of this. These men who were instrumental in starting and who have helped to maintain the Nevada State University look with a vigilant eye on the result of their untiring labors. They watch these results in the main through the columns of the state's leading newspapers and anything that appears in these great mediums of information that reflects discredit and dishonor upon the action of the students that is, the spirit shown by the students in all the various enterprises of collegiate life finds its way to the homes of these honored men and they do not pass the matter without a moment's thought.

In perusing the pages of recent issues of the Nevada State Journal the writer's attention was called to an article written by a member of the senior class entitled "Who Can Suggest a Practical Remedy," evidently for a radical wrong that to the author's imaginative turn of mind is permeating nearly all student enterprises and organizations in the Nevada State University. He even goes so far as to repeat, stating that his so-called foregoing facts are indicative of a something that is radically wrong. He even solicits the suggestion of a practical remedy. Yes, a panacea should be administered to something to an ailment known as "radically wrong." There is no mistake about that. A weighing of past and present conditions from his point of view suggests this. But he fails to state what he means by "radical wrong," and suggests that some one come forward with a "practical remedy." He goes on to say that the players worked against all manners of disadvantages to uphold Nevada's honors and he fails to enumerate these disadvantages. The writer would like to know wherein they existed. In any undertaking we expect and want disadvantages and difficulties to overcome. Otherwise the consummation of one's effort is absolutely non-productive of an aggressive spirit. He drifts from athletics into club organizations, intimating that with few exceptions they have retrogressed and cease to exist. He labors under the mental delusion that a sorely disheartened football team went below, and upon returning the students stood around in groups, eyeing them with curiosity and with pity. And for what reason he fails to say. He apparently is offended and hurt because no football reception has been given. There is nothing out of the ordinary about that so early in the season. The students are never in a hurry about rushing these things upon a football team. That is nothing to cry about. A man should not feel offended if he does not receive praise for performing a single duty. He further says in his judgment, all the old-time form and interest is no more.

He enters all the branches of athletics with his abundance of criticism and in one case openly accuses the baseball team is playing as a downtown organization and does it in a way to send out the impression that it was the condition throughout the season, brought on by a failure of student support. He reviews the Crescent club with his critical eye, an organization composed of "prep" students and there sees ground for complaint. He says that a glorious failure was the culmination of an effort to organize a press club.

Fortunately the source of all these rambling allusions emanate from the individual, and has not or never will meet with the approval of those who have the interest of the university at heart.

It is safe to say that criticism along certain lines and made in the proper spirit is beneficial, but when an article appears by a member of the senior class to be printed in the columns of the state's largest and leading daily newspaper, and the article contains on its face, tends to belittle the life and enterprise of the students it should immediately be squelched.

Now, as to a "practical remedy," the best thing to do is to get into the harness and pull some. There are plenty of good horses in the University of Nevada, and there are also a few who will refuse pull or allow a good horse to pull and still have the nerve to stand back and kick about the load standing still. All that is required is a little action and a little less criticism and fault-finding. How much do you suppose the financial troubles of the Crescent club interests the good citizens of Lamoille valley or any other district, but what will disinterest them is an open statement from a senior to the effect that a decline in athletics and a lethargy among nearly all university club and literary organizations is prevalent.

STANDERWICK AGAIN DEFINES POSITION

Senior at the University of Nevada Replies to President Case of the Student Body

By H M Standerwick

Your editorial comment on certain matters in Thursday's Journal was not on purpose to make me an issue in any way personal Yet I feel as a student I myself to have been the object of my remarks that if the certain facts point to me the president of the Student Body is in part to blame for I am not responsible If the shoe fits wear it But I care to regard the editorial as well meant advice and so will treat it

In the first place Mr Case insists that the public press is no place for discussion of university affairs as the public is not interested in affairs that do not concern them I can't be that the people of the state do support this institution and have a say to learning and success for their children do not care to know what is going on within the college Again I fail to see why an article by an alumnus relating to the purging of athletics should be so vastly different from an article by a student relating to interest in athletics yet the one appears to be perfectly proper for the public press and in fact admits commending the one in a lengthy article in the Student Record of the Eighth editorial referred to would occupy just eleven lines of space if set in this type I would be glad to have the other Will Mr Case and who has the power to rank the distinction Surely not his place the Record which is not a representative paper of the student I will refrain from calling it a truth and which therefore does not necessarily represent student sentiment

But I have been wrong in speaking through the Journal nevertheless I have not drifted far in sentiment from Mr Case's view of in writes on college affairs He says reform should come through the college paper I quote from his recent editorial There must in the interest who receive consideration and turn must at the hand of the faculty is men The evil effect of the ruling is that it SMACKS OF THE ACADEMY of the moon and some of the unsophisticated is somewhat the same position the pupil when a certain driver would have to learning and success for their children do not care to know What

THE CYANIDE PROCESS FOR SILICIOUS ORES

SUCCESS CROWNS MONTHS OF EFFORT

Discovery by Reno Man May Result in Revolution of the Mining Industry and Opening Up Many Heretofore Valueless Properties in Nevada.

[illegible] process for siliceous [illegible] success on a [illegible]-Tonopah ores, [illegible] have been recovered. [illegible] gives it to Mr. Elwin C. [illegible] that he called the cyanide process for siliceous sulphide [illegible] and made a number of tests [illegible] The ores of San Juan dis[illegible] Nevada. As the process seem[illegible] adapted to Tonopah ores it [illegible] advisable to make [illegible] of tests and to this end [illegible] samples of Tonopah ores [illegible] and the results were so satisfactory [illegible] that a 20 ton lot of Mont[illegible] Tonopah ore was selected to make an exhaustive test.

A corporation was formed, under the laws of the Nevada Gold and Silver Extraction Company, for the exploitation and the officers selected were Elwin C. Poble, president; C. F. Dunaway, vice-president; H. R. Fuller, secretary. Mr. Dunaway agreed to alone finance the proposition, but has done so, notwithstanding the fact that a number of assessments have been made from time to time to help pay the expenses, as up to date, at least, the process has proved to be the solution of the question of the reduction of Tonopah ores. Mr. Dunaway declined all offers of profit because while having perfect confidence himself, it might result in a failure, and in that case only his money would be lost.

For the purpose of their tests the Nevada Reduction smelting and mining company leased a mill a mile below Reno, which was fitted and remodeled to the extent necessary, and while this work was being accomplished laboratory tests were made by Mr. Poble in his own private office.

As above stated a 20 ton lot of Montgomery-Shoshone ore was run and 92 per cent of the values recovered. This in the face of the public announcement of doubters that the process was entirely impracticable, and by owners in a great degree to be based without foundation however that it was some kind of an amalgamation process.

As a result of this test there are now bars of pure metal, one weighing 75 pounds one 2 pounds and the other one pound.

It is a well accepted fact that the ores do not receive anywhere near the milling capacity of the Tonopah mines and it seemed specially desirable that some process be devised to meet this demand, but it was also necessary that the process be such a one as would meet the surrounding conditions in that district.

It is easy enough to erect a smelter, it is extremely hard to find a point in all respects desirable, for while the ores might be obtained in a section coke and coal land, lime or iron could not be easily attainable as flux. There is no reducing element in the process but an oxidizing element, which does not require coke or coal for fuel but oil is used.

It is proposed to at once erect a 100 ton plant and increase this capacity as fast as possible.

This process bids fair to revolutionize the recovery of values from the Tonopah ores and will relieve the congestion of ore-output which is so much to the detriment as it curtails the exploitation to such a damaging extent.

C. F. Waterman Comes From Mexico

C. F. Waterman a well known Nevada mining man, returned last Thursday from Manchuria, Mexico, where he was examining mining property. He was accompanied on the trip by Chas. Keyser his partner, M. Waterman incidentally took in the American Mining Congress which was then in session at El Paso. This gentleman states that there was great enthusiasm at the meeting, especially on the part of the delegates from New Mexico and Arizona, who were out in strong delegations. The copper districts in the south are experiencing an unprecedented degree of prosperity, and the properties are being boosted those already tied up paying handsome dividends being made.

YESTERDAY morning the most flattering result was had in the recovery of fifty pounds of pure metal, after months of arduous labor, in exhaustively testing Tonopah ores, which will revolutionize the process for recovering values from siliceous sulphides.

DEATH VALLEY MINES ARE RICH

There Are Said to be 5,000 Prospectors in This Region and Many Have Good Properties

The Death Valley country is developing attracting a great deal of attention not only in Nevada but the entire west seeks information from the district near Death Valley, hence the Panamint range, on the west side of Death Valley is the Mecca for prospectors and it is said that not less than 5000 people are now in that section. In Pleasant Canyon, while not thoroughly prospected by any means, a number of good properties have been secured.

Within the last few weeks the Tyler Bros. and others have disposed of their interests for $25,000 in the Mountain Boy and other claims at the head of the canyon at Stone Corral. During the last winter the locators mortared out $370 from a few hundred pounds of rock from the Mountain Boy claim. There is a series of small veins of the same character running north and south from Stone Corral for many miles. They have been very productive with the pestal and mortar and also a one stamp mill, owned by Cooper, produced $22,500 in gold. These veins are in a contact of hard slate and quartzite, the belt being about 2 miles wide.

While this canyon has never had any extensive prospecting or developing, still there are several other properties which have produced large sums of money. Charlie Anthony with a small mill on the Mineral Ranch property has taken out over $100,000 from a high grade vein. A freshet two years ago practically demolished his mill, but he has continued development on the mine, which at present shows three feet of $25 ore in the stopes. With new and proper equipment, he will again be producing bullion.

The formations of this canyon is like those of the adjoining canyons, run parallel with the range, the canyons the softer cutting them and plainly exposing the dykes and strata. At the mouth of the canyon is the schist belt, then comes intrusive granite, then slate, greenstone, and lastly limestone, that caps the very summit of the range. Some of the ledges are in contact of the different formations, and show clean cut fissures.

All the ores of this canyon carry gold only, but the occurrence of this metal is about as varied as the formations in which the veins occur. Some of the ores will plate practically all their values, in other cases they are so base as to require smelting. Sometimes the gold occurs with iron and sometimes with lead.

Like most canyons of the range, Pleasant has a running stream of about 20 inches of water, which is sufficient for all milling purposes.

At the head of the canyon there is a large amount of pinon pine rossing 85 per cent full down, and which can be used for fuel or mine timbers. This canyon still offers an opportunity for investment.

"The Lazy Bee" has located in Reno, at 224 Virginia street, Brooking's old store. n201

SOUTHERN NEVADA BIG GOLD MINES

Large Bodies of Ore That Horn More Than $40 Per Ton In Gold

The mines in Paiute canyon, 12 miles north of Pahranagat, are in a fine gabbro schist country to the mouths of most canyons on the west side, and is similar to that containing the veins of the famous Rathbone district, 60 miles to the southwest.

This canyon shows a perfect outcrop of well defined veins. At present the best known mine of the canyon is the Black Rock, owned by Mr. Flint. A shaft is now being sunk and has reached a depth of 50 feet. The width of the vein on the surface is known to be 12 feet, but with depth only one foot has been ascertained by crosscut. The hanging wall is the richest ore, and near the surface 6 feet of this side of the vein hand picked assayed more than $40 per ton. The average of the entire vein is close to $25 per ton, and being an exceptionally free ore the importance of the strike to the district is great. Even now for five years the assessment work has been done by driving a crosscut tunnel a few feet each year until this spring when it encountered the vein, which crops boldly on the surface. It is expected the showing on this property is one of the best in the entire range. Its discovery, however, affords a good example of the slowness with which all discoveries and developments have been carried on in the Panamint range.

A short distance south of this ground on the vein are the Jesse Jane and the Last Chance claims, the latter being the first claim discovered and located in this canyon several years ago. Several veins boldly outcrop in many places for almost the entire length of two claims. Very high assays have been obtained of selected pieces, one of which gives as high as 50 oz in gold. Recently a mill run of 45 tons stated more than $40 per ton. Nothing more than surface scratching has ever been done, though the present owners of the property sold $1500 cash several years ago for the two claims.

Further up the canyon several more good veins have been located and showing well with development. Jack Coyle Jack Wentworth and Pen Powers have good properties upon which they are working. Other veins are known to exist further up the canyon and show good values in free gold in the hand specimens, one as usual being the finest milling of any in the Panamint range.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

ANOTHER LIE NAILED

WHEN a public man's record is as flawless as that of Senator Newlands it is natural that his opponents should resort to falsehood in order to do him that harm which the truth would forbid.

One of the favorite methods of those whose attention is called to Mr. Newalnds' irrigation labors and achevments is to assert that his work in this regard was prompted by a selfish motive—that Mr Newlands had acquired great tracts of arid land years ago and that he reckoned upon the enactment of a government irrigation law to make these lands enormously valuable Therefore, say the detractors, he was actuated by mercenary motives and he has been well repaid for his work, no matter how great his labors or their results

Pausing a moment to consider this phase of the question let us suppose that Senator Newlands had bought this land with the expectation of seeing its value appreciate through irrigation to such an extent that a very moderate investment might yield a very large return Let us suppose that he was so poor a business man that he would venture a somewhat considerable sum upon so desperate a speculation (for even Mr Newlands himself must have been the rankest sort of an optimist it so far back as twelve or thirteen years ago he expected so early a fruition of the irrigation idea as it had the good fortune to experience) then what? Admitting that he thereby made a great gain did he not as well make an infinitely greater gain for the people of Nevada? And not only for them, but for the citizens of all other arid states? And is not a citizen of such remarkable foresight, such keen statesmanship such boundless energy to be rewarded? If by conferring an immense benefit upon his fellow citizens and upon humanity at large, he thereby incurs some of the prosperity which his own ability has created, are his claims to recognition to be denied, are his aspirations to do greater deeds of statesmanship to be flouted, is there no gratitude for the benefits conferred upon others? No reasonable man will say "No," no more than any heart-cankered, personal enemy will say "Yes" No other senator from Nevada accomplished anything for her good. William M Stewart returned, after thirty years' service, bearing in his hands as the only fruits of that long term a vote for the bill that demonetized silver And in many quarters there is less condemnation for that venerable misrepresentative of Nevada than there is for Newlands, of glorious achevment But Stewart goes to Bullfrog and builds a residence there and the newspapers of southern Nevada have nothing but words of kindness for him Suppose he had fathered and brought to a successful completion a measure so fraught with good to Nevada as is the Newlands irrigation act? Would they call attention to the fact that he was not a pauper that he had made a few dollars along with the rest of the farmers of the State? No, for they are edited by men of sense—men who come from states where the people are glad to get an honest and able senator once in a while, and to encourage him in his work of well doing

But when the fact becomes known that Mr Newlands really did buy those lands, but that he has turned them back to the government at actual cost, thus bearing out his statement that he desired to hold them solely for the purpose of keeping them out of the hands of speculators, what will the detractors say? They cannot deny it, for it is the truth Then will they confess their error and apologize for spreading it broadcast, or will they look about for another falsehood to disseminate another mudheap from which to hurl a gob?

Whatever they do, it does not matter The people of Nevada are just and we rest secure in their verdict

The PROPER THING

In Men's Fine Overcoats

TO BEGIN WITH—There are no arbitrary standards or laws for correct coats.

CUSTOM—The habit and practice of men who give much thought and careful attention to the strict proprieties of clothes; this is the chief guide.

THE THINGS—Which such men agree on, without any of the little extra "fads"—these are correct styles.

COMMON SENSE—Helps a good deal. The average man doesn't attempt to make the style. All he asks to know is what is correct; and somebody ought to tell him.

We don't intend to pose as law makers in the matter; we can tell you what is the custom of careful dressers as to propriety in dress; you will have to supply your own common sense.
